Journal of Far Right Studies

Publish your research findings
on the illiberal,
populist,
and far right!

Become an author in an international academic journal dedicated to examining the global far right in its political, economic, cultural, media, and social dimensions.

We warmly invite you to submit your contributions to Journal of Far Right Studies (ZRex – Zeitschrift für Rechtsextremismusforschung). The journal thrives on the contributions of those who are theoretically and methodologically skilled in addressing innovative research questions and exploring the various dimensions and forms of the global far right. Contributions can be submitted at any time.

We offer peer review, open access publication, a scientific platform for critical research on the far right, interdisciplinary perspectives and exchange with related fields of research.

We seek topic-related submissions, such as current developments, international case studies and comparative analyses as well as historical and contemporary studies of far-right organizations, parties, and movements.

Further information, manuscript guidelines, contact details, and the complete online archive of ZRex are available at:
